You are invited to attend this four-hour UDC update class.

The training will cover the changes that will impact the compliance process and the compliance mechanisms that go into meeting the new energy requirements of the UDC. You will learn the construction specific details that are now required in the 2009 Wisconsin UDC.

This training will earn you four continuing education credits toward your licensing requirements.

- 1) The new version of REScheck compliance software
- 2) The removal of equipment Uo trade-off
- 3) The establishing of minimum equipment efficiencies
- 4) New vapor retarder requirements

Presenter: Joe Nagan, owner of Home Building Technology Services in Kaukauna, Wisconsin, performs construction management and consulting on high performance homes. Joe shares his knowledge and experience at various local, state and national conferences. He is especially well-known and widely respected for his knowledge of mechanical ventilation. Joe offers hands-on assistance to builders and contractors, addressing advanced air sealing, design and installation of mechanical ventilation systems and performance testing. He is certified through the Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Institute of Canada (HRAI) in the design and installation of ventilation systems. Joe currently serves as the technical director for the Wisconsin ENERGY STAR Homes program. He is a member of the Energy Efficient Building Association (EEBA) and a past winner of their international design competition for energy efficient housing. Joe also received the 2004 Wisconsin Governor's Commitment to Excellence Award for Exemplary Leadership to Advance the Performance of Residential Buildings.
